ALTOONA, Pa. --A professor, Adam Faight, and his students from YTI Career Institute built computer labs for local organizations around Altoona.

One of the organizations included was United Methodist Church located in downtown Altoona.

"We have constructed three computer labs so far," said Faight. "The students handle the process in totality. I only supervise. They do the initial site assessment to determine equipment needs and then setup the equipment, which includes installing the operating systems, networking, cabling and more."

Faight said each computer lab built took approximately three to five hours to complete.

The computer systems technician program supplies the towers, keyboards, mice and monitors while also providing each site with discounted software such as Microsoft Windows.

For more information on the computer lab construction, contact Adam Faight or the Computer System Technician Program at YTI Career Institute Altoona.
