Bambie Jordan, 50, a York Technical Institute graduate from Windsor Township, will be honored in Washington, D.C., with the Graduate Recognition for Excellence, Achievement and Talent Award.

The award is presented by the Association for Private Sector Colleges and Universities. Jordan is one of five students out of 180 candidates from various private colleges and universities who will receive the award, which will be presented to her March 4.

Jordan, a cancer survivor, was nominated by YTI. "It feels great," she said of the recognition.

The award honors people for excellence or extraordinary talent in their field of study; people who are military veterans; or people who have overcome great odds to achieve educational goals.
